Pelosi: We Were Deceived

Speaker levels harsh charges against the CIA over torture

WASHINGTON | House Speaker Nancy Pelosi bluntly accused the CIA on Thursday of misleading her and other lawmakers about its use of waterboarding during the Bush administration, escalating a controversy grown to include both political parties, the spy agency and the White House.

"It is not the policy of this agency to mislead the United States Congress," responded CIA spokesman George Little, although he refused to answer directly when asked whether Pelosi's accusation was accurate.

But the House's top Democrat was unequivocal about a CIA briefing she received in the fall of 2002. "We were told that waterboarding was not being used," the speaker said. "That's the only mention, that they were not using it. And we now know that earlier they were."

Pelosi also disputed Republican charges that she was complicit in the use of waterboarding, and she suggested the GOP was trying to shift the focus of public attention away from the Bush administration's use of techniques that she and President Obama have described as torture. (AP)

He Cares Enough To Steal the Very Best

Jefferson County, Colo., authorities are looking for a man dubbed the “Nicotine Ninja,” who’s believed to have stolen $120,000 worth of cigarettes in the past two years. He plans to appeal. (AP)

In Chemo, Ginger May Offer Relief

Study: Herb capsules seem to tone down nausea in treatment

HEALTH | Ginger, long used as a folk remedy for soothing tummy aches, helped tame one of the most dreaded side effects of cancer treatment — nausea from chemotherapy — the first large study to test the herb for this has found.

People who started taking ginger capsules several days before a chemo infusion had fewer and less severe bouts of nausea afterward than others who were given dummy capsules, the study found.

"We were slightly beside ourselves" to see how much it helped, said study leader Julie Ryan.

But don't reach for the ginger ale. Many sodas and cookies contain only flavoring — not real ginger, Ryan said. Her study tested a drug-like ginger root extract.

Ginger capsules may offer a cheap, simple way to fight nausea, which is far more than just a quality-of-life issue, doctors say. Some cancer patients cut treatment short or refuse chemo altogether because of nausea, hurting their chances of beating the disease. (AP)

Dems Ponder Insurance Mandate

House plan would require everyone to have health coverage

WASHINGTON | House Democrats are crafting a plan that would require all Americans to carry health insurance and would help families making less than $88,000 pay the premiums. Employers, too, would have to help foot the bill.

It's the latest development in President Obama's push to fix the ailing U.S. health care system by getting the government more deeply involved.

Obama has said the final legislation must rein in costs, guarantee choice of health plans and medical providers, and ensure that all Americans have access to affordable coverage. But he's leaving it to Congress to work out the details.

Responding to a question at a town hall-style meeting in New Mexico on Thursday, Obama said he expects a plan from Congress that will be a "vast improvement" over the current system.

A document obtained by The President Obama speaks at a town hall event in Rio Rancho, N.M., Thursday. Obama is pressing for legislation on health care.

Associated Press provides an early look at where Democratic leaders in the House are heading as they try to meet an ambitious July 31 deadline for passing their version of the legislation. The Senate is working on a similar plan, with some key differences.

The plan by the House Energy and Commerce Committee would build on the current system in which employers, government and individuals share responsibility for health insurance.

The House document also calls for a new government insurance plan to compete with private companies. It would be financed by premium payments.

Insurers are strongly opposed to a government-sponsored plan, saying it would drive them out of business. RICARDO ALONSO-ZALDIVAR AND ERICA WERNER (AP)

One year after cancer diagnosis, Kennedy is keeping goals in sight

BOSTON | Between doctors' appointments, Edward Kennedy has been working the phones, urging Senate colleagues to pass a health care bill. He's trying to finish his memoirs. And he's overseeing the design of a namesake building to stand next to his brother's presidential library.

A year after being diagnosed with terminal brain cancer, the 77-year-old last surviving Kennedy brother has defied some doctors' expectations and worked steadily to cement his personal and political legacies.

"He's taken about every bit of human tragedy you could, and nothing has stopped his human purpose for what we are all here to do," said Paul Kirk, a longtime family friend.

Kennedy learned he had a malignant tumor called a glioma after suffering a seizure on May 17, 2008. The prognosis was grim: Median survival for the worst form of gliomas is 12 to 15 months.

After he was diagnosed, Kennedy gathered top cancer specialists and slipped away to North Carolina to undergo a risky surgery.

Just a month later, he returned triumphantly to the Senate to cast a decisive vote on a Medicare bill. In January, Kennedy fulfilled his promise to attend Barack Obama's inauguration. But his collapse at a lunch after the swearing-in was a reminder of Kennedy's frailty.

Doctors blamed the senator's collapse on fatigue from being outside in the cold for the ceremony, but the episode also underscored the urgency behind Kennedy's efforts to secure his legacy.

In addition to his memoirs, Kennedy has been completing the final phase of an oral history project for the University of Virginia. And he's monitored the design of the Edward M. Kennedy Institute, which will seek to educate the public about the Senate.

Kennedy has made only a handful of public statements since he was first stricken with cancer, including brief remarks at a White House health care conference in March.

"I look forward to being a foot soldier in this undertaking," Kennedy said at the health care event. "This time, we will not fail."

CIA Denies Cheney's Call to Release Memos

Agency: Documents on interrogation must be kept secret for now

WASHINGTON | The CIA has rejected a request from former vice president Dick Cheney to release documents that he says show that the agency's harsh interrogation methods helped thwart terrorist plots.

A letter Thursday denying the request cited pending legal action as the sole reason for keeping the documents under seal.

"For that reason — and that reason only — CIA did not accept Mr. Cheney's request for a mandatory declassification review," agency spokesman Paul Gimigliano said.

Memoir Exposes Chinese Dissent

Book reveals leader's views on stifled 1989 democracy movement

BEIJING | It took hours of secret recordings and years of clandestine planning to get the material smuggled out and translated.

But just weeks before the 20th anniversary of the Tiananmen Square democracy movement's brutal quelling, the Chinese leader ousted for opposing the crackdown has broken his silence in a posthumous memoir that gives a rare insight to the inner workings of the Communist Party during a critical time.

Communist Party official Zhao Ziyang, center, speaks with fasting students in Beijing's Tiananmen Square on May 19, 1989, the last time he was seen in public.

And in a conclusion extraordinary for someone who devoted his career to the party, Zhao Ziyang also urges China to become a parliamentary democracy in order to truly modernize.

The 306-page "Prisoner of the State: The Secret Journal of Premier Zhao Ziyang" was crafted over four years from nearly 30 hours of tapes recorded in secret by Zhao, who lived under house arrest for 15 years before dying in 2005. Scheduled for worldwide release on May 19, the book details how leaders grappled with the 1989 protests.

While it may raise eyebrows among the Communist Party leadership, "Prisoner of the State" is unlikely to cause real waves among top cadres. The leaders who took over after Zhao maintain that the crushing of the Tiananmen protests paved the way for China's economic success. AUDRA ANG (AP)

IN HIS OWN WORDS

Excerpts from Zhao Ziyang's book "Prisoner of the State" regarding the 1989 pro-democracy protests in Tiananmen Square:

→ "On the night of June 3rd, while sitting in the courtyard with my family, I heard intense gunfire. A tragedy to shock the world had not been averted, and was happening after all."

→ "[I]t was said that this event was aimed at overthrowing the People's Republic and the Communist Party. Where is the evidence?"

→ "[C]an it be proven that the ... movement was 'counterrevolutionary turmoil,' as it was designated? The students were orderly."

wants to close a quarter of its dealers in a matter of weeks, a strategy that might help save the company but would wipe out thousands of jobs.

With General Motors Corp.

expected to announce it will close about 1,100 dealerships, the crisis in the auto industry is reaching far beyond the front doors of Americans who live far from Detroit.

Millerstown Chrysler will try to survive by selling used cars. Otherwise, the town of 700 will lose one of its largest employers and a major source of tax revenue. And in other communities that depend on dealers for everything from newspaper advertising to Little League sponsorships, the ripple effect could be devastating. Dealerships on the closing list are in every state but Alaska.

The National Automobile Dealers Association says about 40,000 people work at the affected dealerships.

Chrysler said in its filing that sales are too low at many of the dealerships. Half its dealers account for 90 percent of its sales, and the company is trying to cut poor performers that compete for the same customers.

Chrysler said it wants to shed the dealerships by June 9. (AP)

Hotel contractor told to prevent dispersal of plastic foam bits

Montgomery County officials will allow Donohoe Construction to continue work at a Bethesda hotel site, despite complaints from nearby offices that the company has not done enough to limit dispersal of millions of plastic foam particles.

Bob Hoyt, the county's environment director, sent inspectors Thursday morning to the site on Waverly Street where Donohoe is building a Hilton Garden Inn. The inspectors told a company official to spread more netting to block dispersal of the particles, which have been flying from the site since late March, according to county records.

"What we have seen is continued efforts by the contractor to do everything he can to prevent the dispersal of styrofoam off the site," Hoyt said.

Earlier Thursday, County Council member George Leventhal asked county officials to consider ordering the company to stop work at the site until more efforts are made to limit dispersal of particles.

"This is unacceptable," Leventhal said.

In recent weeks, office workers around the site and a county inspector have documented piles of the particles throughout the area, including some that have landed several blocks away, as well as in a nearby stream on the Georgetown Branch walker-biker trail.

Unemployment Will Hit 11.5% in D.C., CFO Says

WASHINGTON | The District of Columbia's chief financial officer predicts the city's unemployment rate will increase to 11.5 percent next year. In prepared testimony Thursday for a House subcommittee hearing, Natwar Gandhi said he expects the city's economic conditions will continue to deteriorate as employment and wages decrease and office vacancies rise.

Still, he says that while D.C.'s job base has been weakened by the nation's economic slump, it is faring better than most places. (AP)

1 WHO WILL BE BACK?

The current NHL salary cap is $56.7 million, with the Caps approximately $1.29 million under that figure, according to NhlNumbers.com. But experts expect the cap to shrink a bit next year. Forwards SERGEI FEDOROV, Donald Brashear and Viktor Kozlov are all unrestricted free agents, while defensemen Milan Jurcina, Shaone Morrisonn and Jeff Schultz are restricted free agents. The guess here is the team brings back Fedorov, Jurcina and possibly Schultz for the right price.

2 WHAT ABOUT THE DEFENSE?

Perhaps the lasting image from the Pens series will be of Sidney Crosby scoring goal after goal camped out in front of the Caps' net — a problem that beset the team all season. GM GEORGE MCPHEE tried to address the issue at the trading deadline but didn't pull the trigger. With three blueliners facing free agency, will McPhee count on his two top draft picks waiting in the wings (Hershey's Karl Alzner and John Carlson) or upgrade via free agency?

3 NEW FACES?

There are two glaring deficiencies in the Caps' armor: the lack of an imposing defenseman (addressed to the left) and the absence of a power forward who specializes in doing dirty work around the net. Forwards such as DETROIT'S MIKAEL SAMUELSSON or Carolina's Erik Cole are all unrestricted free agents who could suit the Caps' needs.

WHAT'S NEXT FOR THE CAPS?

IN THE AFTERMATH of Wednesday night's devastating Game 7 blowout to the Pittsburgh Penguins, the most frustrating part for Capitals players and coaches was that the effort put forth in the 6-2 loss was far from the team's best this season. In fact, they could probably say that about the entire postseason.

Despite a regular season in which it racked up 50 wins and a franchise-record 108 points, the team was just 7-7 in the playoffs. Still, it was just one win away from making the Eastern Conference finals. "We're very close to being a very good team," said coach Bruce Boudreau. So, how do they reach that potential? Here's what to look for this offseason.

JOHN McDONNELL/TWP

The Penguins had plenty to celebrate while the Capitals were forced to pull rookie goalie Simeon Varlamov on Wednesday. Now Washington must find ways to improve.

4 WHO'S THE GOALIE?

This isn't a question because of Simeon Varlamov's poor performance in Game 7; it's more due to the fact that carrying Jose Theodore as a $4.5 million backup just doesn't make much financial sense. Add in that if you ask some Caps brass, they'll say 20-year-old Hershey netminder Michael Neuvirth is the equal to Varlamov, and it's clear the team has a bit of a conundrum.

5 WHAT WILL THEY LEARN?

When players met with the media immediately after the Game 7 letdown, most were still in a state of shock. A year ago, the Caps had the same heartbroken feeling when they lost a Game 7 to Philadelphia. They responded then by compiling the best regular season in team history and making it a round further than a season before. The Caps' under-25 core will remain largely in tact for next year, so how will players such as ALEX OVECHKIN, Nicklas Backstrom, Mike Green and Alexander Semin react this time around? MARK GIANNOTTO

TV 'Cops' Already Booked

The star-crossed Bengals are about to become HBO's latest stars. The cable channel and NFL Films chose one of the league's least-successful teams of the last 18 years for its next "Hard Knocks" training camp series. Last year, the Dallas Cowboys were the ones followed through training camp. The Bengals have only one winning record since 1991, when owner Mike Brown took over. One intriguing subplot will be how Brown, who shies away from cameras, comes across in the episodes. (AP)

Swengali
THE CAPITALS | BY MATT SWENSON

Caps Took a Big Step This Year

THE CAPITALS' AGONIZINGLY LOPSIDED loss in Game 7 to the Penguins Wednesday shows just how far the Caps still have to go to become a championship team.

The bright side is that this team, made up of players mostly under 25 years old, made it this far. Washington made important progress this season.

Courage was displayed often — out of necessity, since the Caps had to battle back from 3-1 down against the Rangers and then find their composure to force Wednesday's climactic game after losing three straight to the Penguins.

Pittsburgh outplayed Washington on many levels. The Capitals were outshot and committed more penalties, two examples of how the Penguins are a bit smarter about when to be aggressive.

No major reworking needs to be done for this team. Clearly, it has the right coach in Bruce Boudreau, and its star, Alex Ovechkin, rose to the occasion.

Sometimes, all a squad needs is another year to become a little wiser. This seems to be the case. The Capitals won over this town this season. Next, maybe they can win the Stanley Cup.

Sweeps Month For Cavaliers

After 2nd dominating series win, Cleveland enjoys lengthy respite

NBA PLAYOFFS | Team Sweep did some housekeeping on Wednesday.

Waiting around — again — for their next opponent in the NBA playoffs, the Cleveland Cavaliers, an impressive 8-0 in the postseason, returned to the practice floor to begin preparations for an Eastern Conference final against a yet-to-be-determined opponent.

So, while Orlando and Boston got ready for Game 6 of their semifinal series on Thursday night, the Cavs watched game tape, reviewed defensive assignments, worked on free throws and passed the time during the initial hours of their second lengthy lay-off this month.

These Cavaliers are resting, not restless. "I wouldn't change it for the world," said center Zydrunas Ilgauskas. "I like the position we're in. We've earned it."

Monday is the soonest the Cavs will play again, as four-game sweeps of Detroit and Atlanta have given the Central Division champions ample time to recover, scout the Magic and Celtics, and try to maintain their buzz-saw momentum.

"We have a plan," coach Mike Brown said with a smile. (AP)

Horse Racing's New Belle

Rachel Alexandra gives the Preakness needed star power

HORSE RACING | This must be one special filly.

Rachel Alexandra is adding a dose of girl power to Saturday's Preakness Stakes, taking on a field of 12 colts for the first time in her 3-year-old life.

The tall, rangy filly has inspired uncommon faith from her owners, unusual loyalty from her jockey and early backing from the race's oddsmaker, all while carrying the hopes of a fading industry desperately seeking a star.

“She has the appetite and the skill to compete. We don't know how good she is, so we're trying to define her.”

Her mere entry in the Preakness is a surprise. Fillies don't usually take on colts at the top level of racing because the boys are bigger, faster and stronger, and Rachel Alexandra's new owners had to pay $100,000 above the entry fee

An early 8-5 favorite to win the Preakness, Rachel Alexandra is looking to become the first filly since 1924 to win the Triple Crown event. The race is on Saturday.

RUNNING WITH THE GUYS

Rachel Alexandra, who's won five races by a combined 43 1/2 lengths, will be one of just a handful of modern fillies to run the Preakness:

have run since 1940; Rachel Alexandra will be the fourth.

TRACK RECORDS

Even fillies who have won the Kentucky Derby (Genuine Risk and Winning Colors) had a much harder time winning at Preakness. But even still, it's not unheard of for a filly to win it all:

TOP FILLIES

1903	Flocarline	1st
1906	Whimsical	1st
1915	Rhine Maiden	1st
1924	Nellie Morse	1st
1901	Sadie S.	2nd
1905	Kiamasha	2nd
1906	Content	2nd
1921	Polly Ann	2nd

because she wasn't nominated to any of the Triple Crown races. Her previous owners had expected her to compete strictly against her own gender. But she's clobbered the other girls. And she's larger than the Kentucky Derby winner.

"I think the fans deserve to see the best horses compete regardless of sex," co-owner Jess Jackson said on a conference call Wednesday. "This isn't about male or female; it's about the best athletes."

Rachel Alexandra has won five consecutive races by a combined 43 1/2 lengths, virtually lapping the field and drawing comparisons to legendary fillies Ruffian and Winning Colors.

Now she's trying to achieve a feat unmatched since 1924, when Nellie Morse was the last of four fillies to win the 134-year-old Preakness. "She has the appetite and the skill to compete," Jackson said. "We don't know how good she is, so we're trying to define her."

D. Wayne Lukas, the Hall of Fame trainer who saddled Winning Colors, thinks Rachel Alexandra is a perfect candidate to take on the boys. He said her dominance of fellow females, front-running style and pedigree suggests she can handle the 1 3/16-mile distance. "She is definitely the one to beat," Lukas said. BETH HARRIS (AP)

Back to Reality for Zimmerman

Nationals star kept perspective in midst of 30-game hit streak

NATIONALS | For 30 games, it rarely came down to the final plate appearance.

The longest hitting streak in baseball this season, one that took Ryan Zimmerman more than halfway to Joe Dimaggio's seemingly unreachable 56-game mark, was forged with a minimum of suspense. Most often, the Washington Nationals' 25-year-old third baseman got his hit out of the way in his first or second at-bat.

So, when he came to the plate

Ryan Zimmerman's hitting streak has put a rare positive spotlight on this Nats season.

“It would have sucked a lot more if we had lost.”

hitless in the top of the ninth in San Francisco on Wednesday, the pressure was on. When he hit into a fielder's choice, the streak had ended but the game hadn't. Minutes later, Zimmerman slid across home plate just ahead of the catcher's tag. He pumped his fist, knowing he'd just provided a critical insurance run in a 6-3 victory.

After the game, he told reporters he was sad to see the streak end but it was always of secondary importance. "It would have sucked a lot more if we had lost," he said.

Zimmerman handled the hitting streak with a veteran's poise and watched his batting average rise to .357 in the process. And yet he maintained perspective. "It makes you realize how much better 56 is than 30," he said Wednesday. "That's a long time."

Zimmerman's streak was just beginning to invite national attention, a rare positive headline in a season identified so far with a steady string of bullpen busts. He hadn't gone hitless since the second game of the season.

"He put us on the map a little bit with what he did," said manager Manny Acta, whose team returns home to face the Phillies this weekend. "The main thing is he can start another one on Friday." DEREK TURNER

Diego Luna
ACTOR, SOCCER ENTHUSIAST, BUDDING CHEF

If there's one word that doesn't describe goofy new dad Diego Luna, it's "rough," or "rudo" as they say en espanol. But in the movie "Rudo y Cursi" (opening in D.C. today), he plays the former, a combative banana plantation worker who breaks into big-time soccer — along with his wannabe singer half-brother, Cursi, played by childhood pal Gael Garcia Bernal.

I hear you're actually pretty good at soccer. True?
Then you have been talking to the right people. But when I was 12, I was really fat, so people would laugh at me when I told them I wanted to be a football player.

It must be exciting to be in a soccer movie, though, right?
It was so fun. When the director and I were working out the character, though, I had this stupid idea of having a scar on my mouth. We were thinking about what kind of guy he was, and we thought he'd have it from a fight. But then when we were shooting, I realized that the sweat would erase the scar. So, I was standing on a soccer field with 11 guys in front of me, and I couldn't do anything. Luckily, I learned how to play without sweating.

The brothers have a dream to build a house for their mom. Do you have any goals like that?
When you live in Mexico City, you always dream of having a quiet place where no one can bother you. A few years ago, I bought a little piece of land in front of the beach, but I haven't built anything yet.

The movie shows the temptations that come along with fame. Any of that resonate with you?

I have seen many of those stories, but I can't personally relate. Fame is a different thing than Rudo thinks it is. So many TV shows teach you how to be famous in a week. I believe you first have to know who you are. It's about being happy and enjoying what you do.

"Many TV shows teach you how to be famous in a week. I believe you first have to know who you are."

Is there any off-screen rivalry between you and Gael??
No, we had one when we were younger. But we know how important our relationship is. This is sometimes a lonely path to walk. It's nice to be able to call someone who understands you immediately. And through football and sports, we get the tension out. On this tour, we're going to play squash in every city, so one of us will be the winner.

What's up with your restaurants?
I'm a partner in a few. I love eating. Remember, I told you I was fat when I was 12. My personality is of a little fat guy. When my wife was pregnant, I had to cook, and I realized I love cooking. I'm into cooking stuff I've never eaten. I have cookbooks to cook for 20 years.

I have to ask about the facial hair.
Everyone said my mustache is the most beautiful ever on-screen! We decided he needed to have a mustache because he's always trying to show he's older in every way. And in the past 10 months, with the movie and the baby, there's been no time to shave. Once you shave, you have to keep shaving. The in-between thing is itchy. And my baby loves playing with my beard, so it stays.

— TOM HANKS, RIGHT, DISCUSSING PROFESSOR ROBERT LANGDON, THE CHARACTER HE PLAYS IN "ANGELS & DEMONS" AND "THE DA VINCI CODE."
"I HOPE I GET A CHANCE TO PLAY HIM FIVE MORE TIMES," HE SAID AT THE FILM'S OPENING IN JAPAN.

Blessed Sequel

'Angels and Demons' soars above 'The Da Vinci Code,' its clumsy predecessor

FILM | "Angels & Demons" is more entertaining and less self-serious than the dense and dreary yet enormously successful "The Da Vinci Code."

In adapting another of author Dan Brown's religious-mystery page-turners, director Ron Howard wisely gave in to its beat-the-clock thriller elements, which makes for a more enjoyable summer movie experience. The brouhaha has long since abated among Catholics, albinos, "Da Vinci Code" purists, what have you, and all that's left is air-conditioned escapism.

But its twists, turns and revelations are just as ridiculous as those in the first film — perhaps even more so — and it breezes through arcane details with just as much dizzying speed.

Besides Howard, the key players are back from that 2006 international hit, including Tom Hanks as Harvard professor and symbolist Robert Langdon, and Akiva Goldsman as screenwriter (with David Koepp collaborating on the script). Joining them are Ewan McGregor, Stellan Skarsgaard and Armin Mueller-Stahl among the estimable supporting cast, all of whom have enjoyed the benefits of stronger material but manage to supply gravitas nonetheless.

Although "Angels & Demons" preceded "The Da Vinci Code" in book form, the film is

'ANGELS & DEMONS'

- DIRECTOR: Ron Howard
- STARS: Tom Hanks, Ewan McGregor
- IN A NUTSHELL: The Vatican reluctantly enlists Robert Langdon (Hanks) to help it battle a secret society known as the Illuminati.
- FOR FANS OF: "The Da Vinci Code," "National Treasure" positioned as a sequel to take advantage of the strained relationship between Langdon and the Vatican — but this time, it's his expertise the folks there reluctantly need.

With the pope dead and the College of Cardinals about to meet in conclave to choose a replacement, a secret society known as the Illuminati has kidnapped the four likeliest candidates.

Langdon is brought in to decipher clues at various churches and historical sites throughout Rome to prevent the killing of the cardinals, one every hour, leading to a bomb explosion at the Vatican. He gets help along the way from Vittoria Vetra (Ayelet Zurer), an Italian scientist who worked at the lab where the combustible vial of antimatter was stolen. Her arrival also allows for such standard action-picture dialogue as, "Can you deactivate the device?"

The most laughable part of the story? We won't give it away entirely for those who haven't read the book. We'll just say it involves an exploding helicopter and a crucial character parachuting out of it just in time. Because it is summer, after all. CHRISTY LEMIRE (AP)

Unlike "Da Vinci," which drew criticism from the Catholic Church, the Vatican's review says "Demons" is a fun movie, although very inaccurate. In the end, it's harmless.

Armin Mueller-Stahl, left, and Ewan McGregor don Vatican-chic outfits for their roles as church officials.

CARTOONS Kung Fu Viewing Nickelodeon is adding "Kung Fu Panda: The Series" to its lineup. Based on the hit 2008 film of the same name, the series' 26 episodes will be animated using the same computer-generated process. It will tell new adventures of Po, the frisky martial arts panda who starred in the movie. It's the second co-production between DreamWorks Animation and Nickelodeon — the network recently launched "The Penguins of Madagascar," adapted from DreamWorks' successful 2005 flick "Madagascar." IVONNE VENEGAS/SONY PICTURES CLASSICS

Diego Luna and Gael Garcia Bernal star as soccer-playing siblings in "Rudo y Cursi."

Brothers In Shin Guards

FILM | "Rudo y Cursi" is enormously hackneyed in concept yet surprisingly enjoyable in execution, thanks to some amusing, surreal details and the genuine camaraderie of Diego Luna and Gael Garcia Bernal.

You think you know where it's going, this story about the rise and fall of a couple aspiring soccer players (who happen to be competitive brothers, another familiar theme). But the naturalism of writer-director Carlos Cuarón's approach is too compelling, as is, conversely, the liveliness of co-stars Luna and Garcia Bernal, longtime friends reunited for the first time on the big screen since the 2002 hit "Y Tu Mama Tambien."

Cuarón, who co-wrote that movie, makes his feature debut here; it's also the first film from his brother Alfonso Cuarón and fellow Mexican directors Alejandro González Iñárritu and Guillermo del Toro through their new company, Cha Cha Cha.

Alfonso Cuarón has said the on-screen relationship isn't necessarily a reflection of his own childhood with his younger brother, but Carlos Cuarón has a clear affection for the way these guys tease, torment and ultimately stick by each other.

entertainment lookout

performance is by Idris Elba as Derek, Sharon's stockbroker spouse. When Lisa (Ali Larter) makes a play for him and won't accept his rebuff, the wheels are set in motion. "Obsessed" can't end without a life-or-death fight between Sharon and Lisa, whose attempted seductions are steamy but nongraphic. (JH)

THE SOLOIST (PG-13, 119 minutes) The true story of a newspaper columnist (Robert Downey Jr.) and his friendship with a schizophrenic street musician in Los Angeles (Jamie Foxx), the film is suffused with heartbreak and humanism, as it takes one man's grim story — early promise, bright future, mental breakdown, despair — and turns it into a spiritual meditation on friendship. Downey plays Los Angeles Times columnist Steve Lopez, who happens upon Nathaniel Ayers (Foxx) playing a two-stringed violin in downtown Los Angeles' Pershing Square. Lopez discovers that Ayers once attended Juilliard, and his resulting columns wind up taking the writer not only into the tortured history and mind of his subject, but also into the Bosch-like world of the city's Skid Row. (AH)

STAR TREK (PG-13, 127 minutes) Let us pray. Lord of "Star Trek" and all its spinoffs, we thank thee for a movie that, against all odds, has miraculously resurrected a wheezing but beloved franchise. We thank thee for an origin story that, unlike such recent downers featuring the Incredible

Hulk and Wolverine, pays affectionate respect to its source material but never falls into the trap of slavish worship. We thank thee for Zachary Quinto, who plays Spock with surprising pathos. We thank thee for a setup that pits James T. Kirk (Chris Pine) and Spock against each other, giving the film its fraternal rivalry. But most of all, we thank thee for director J.J. Abrams, who proves such an able steward of this narrative and these characters. We thank thee for imbuing Abrams with taste and conscience enough to guarantee that the franchise will once again live long and prosper. May he do the same. Amen. (AH)

NowPlaying

TYSON (R, 90 minutes) James Toback's film is a sort of guided tour through Mike Tyson's mind with the former prizefighter playing psychic usher. It tells us even more about our irresolvable contradictions:

We destroy the things we love. We repeat mistakes. We dance like Muhammad Ali around the truth, even in our most candid moments. Tyson just does it more spectacularly than most. (DT)

WOLVERINE (PG-13, 107 minutes) Hugh Jackman may be the contractual star of this Marvel Comics-inspired production, which explores (creates) the history of one of Marvel's most popular and conflicted heroes, but technology is what makes the movie what it is. The story starts in 1845, in darkest Canada, where young brothers James and Victor see the man they think is their father gunned down. Throughout history, James (Jackman) and Victor (Liev Schreiber) kick major enemy butt together. Victor/Sabretooth is always the more sadistic of the two. He's one twisted, unkillable dude, actually, and James, aka Logan, aka Wolverine, constantly has to rein him in. But you can see where this is going: conflict. (JA)

'Farrah's Story' details the actress' struggle to overcome cancer

ILLNESS | "Farrah's Story" (9 p.m., NBC, Fri.) is an unvarnished look at Farrah Fawcett's struggle to overcome cancer with her dignity intact.

Fawcett's close friend Alana Stewart was a producer on the project and filmed Fawcett as she endured chemotherapy and other grueling treatments. Fawcett was diagnosed in 2006 with anal cancer that has spread to her liver.

Fawcett is doing "OK," said a guarded Ryan O'Neal, Farrah's longtime companion. He's portrayed as a steady presence, although the two ended their long romantic relationship in the late 1990s.

Fawcett, 62, is in a "very rocky Farrah Fawcett and Ryan O'Neal in 2003, before she was diagnosed with cancer.

place," O'Neal said. "We put on a brave front, always, when we're with her. She doesn't know how scared we are."

In the film, he expresses concern about how the loss of Fawcett would affect their son, Redmond O'Neal, 24, who was just admitted into a court-ordered drug program.

Although a private person, Fawcett realized her experience could inspire others, Stewart said in an interview.

"Farrah's Story" will show her "incredible strength," Stewart said. "Her big message is no matter what they say to you, keep fighting."
